Dear Elizabeth,

Congratulations on having produced such a great and attractive catalog for wndSUPERSTORE. The layout and photos are beautiful. The presentation of the books is outstanding. You offer conservative readers an array of timely and exciting books and DVDs that are irresistible and should sell well, especially with your very competitive pricing.

I am writing you with the idea that you might want to add my most famous book, NEA: Trojan Horse in American Education to a future catalog. It was first published in 1984, sold over 65,000 copies through word of mouth, went through many printings, and influenced many conservatives to home school and vote Republican. The book also got great reviews when it came out.

I have wanted to update the book because of the need to educate the younger generation about our education system and the impact the politicized teachers union is having on U.S. national politics. I have obtained from Phyllis Schlafly her agreement to write several final chapters to bring the book up to 2009. As you know, the NEA has become even more radical than it was in the 1980s with its anti-Christian, pro-gay agenda in high gear. Thus, it is important for young conservatives today to have this information since the NEA will continue to actively promote radical Democratic candidates in every Congressional district.

Would WND's book publishing department be willing to publish this new update edition? If so, I would inform Phyllis and get the project started. Phyllis would be willing to promote sales of the book through her Eagle Forum network. Also, next year's CPAC convention and the many home school conventions across America would be great places to sell the book. As you and Joseph know, education is the key to taking back America, which is a very good reason for getting this book--updated--back into print.

With warm regards,

Sam Blumenfeld

Dear Elizabeth,

Was greatly impressed with your beautiful new catalog for the WND*SUPERSTORE*. It's incredible the progress that WND has made since its momentous beginning. I take great pride in my association with you and Joseph. And am particularly happy that you are now firmly in the book business with both feet.

Several of my books should be in your catalog: Revolution via Education, published this year by Chalcedon of Vallecito, California. If you want to understand why so many young Americans voted for Obama, my book explains why. If you want to know why so many Americans don't know the difference between capitalism and socialism, my book explains why. In short, public education has been preaching socialism for over fifty years, and the indoctrination of American children continues daily.

If you want to know why American literacy is now in the pits, my book The Victims of Dick and Jane explains it all. Also published by Chalcedon. They will gladly send you review copies of the two books. Their phone number is: 209-736-4365. Email address: chalcedon@att.net.

You might also want to reprint updated editions of NEA: Trojan Horse in American Education and Is Public Education Necessary? Phyllis Schlafly has agreed to co-author an updated edition of the NEA book. If we are ever to get the federal government out of the education business, we must educate the new generation of conservatives to understand how government education undermines a free society. In fact, the most important institution in a socialist, communist, or fascist state is government education.

I am enclosing some of the extraordinarily good reviews of the two books when they were first published. These books were instrumental in getting thousands of Christians to take their children out of the public schools and into home schooling. A republication of these two books, with new introductions (perhaps written by you or Joseph) could be a major publishing event for today's conservative movement. Education is the key to saving America, and if it wasn't for the home-school movement, we'd have little chance of reversing this leap to socialism.

Also, as you recall I wrote a scathing denunciation of government education in an early issue of Whistleblower magazine. We can take that article and add many of my WND columns and make it into a hard-hitting book. I hope you like the idea.

There are many pundits who believe that the Internet will replace books as the future means of gaining knowledge. But I see the Internet merely as an accessory to the written word, while books, that can be held in the hand and carried everywhere, will remain the main source of wisdom and human experience. Books become personal treasures that nourish the intellect and add beauty to our lives. A book is a human voice speaking to us across the ages and from far off continents, while the Internet is a computer screen totally dependent on the electric grid for its power. Otherwise, it goes blank. So I heartily congratulate WND for putting its faith in books.

With warmest regards,
