

SAMUEL L. BLUMENFELD

73 Bishops Forest Drive Waltham, MA 02452 781-899-6468 slblu123@verizon.net

May 21, 2008

Dr. Joel H. Mullinex
Pensacola Christian College
P.O. Box 18000
Pensacola, Florida 32523-9160

Dear Dr. Mullinex:

I hope this letter finds you in good health and great spirits.

My new book on the Shakespeare authorship problem, The Marlowe-Shakespeare Connection, is being published by McFarland Publishing Company and will be available in the early fall.

Seven years in the making, the book provides the most compelling evidence that it was Christopher Marlowe who wrote the works attributed to William Shakespeare. Marlowe, as you may know, wrote the most Christian play to come out of the Elizabethan era, Dr. Faustus.

I would like to conduct a Seminar on the Shakespeare Authorship problem for your students of English Literature or lecture to your graduate students, as I have done in the past, or simply lecture to the student body as a whole. The story is a fascinating one that I know your students will greatly enjoy.

Enclosed is a brochure about the book and a flyer about the Seminar.

I would find it most gratifying to be able to lecture once more at Pensacola Christian College on a stimulating historical subject that both enlightens and entertains.

Sincerely,